Condemned Man Makes "Last Ditch" Fight Against Electric Chair

TRY TO LINK FISCH

Charge Mrs. Hauptmann Tore
Lie Detector Machine
From Her Arm

By Kenneth T. Downs
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 11.—(INS)—Allegations of a police "frameup" and startling new evidence tending to link Isidore Fisch to the Lindbergh kidnapping form the basis for Bruno Richard Hauptmann's impending last ditch fight to escape the electric chair. It was learned today from a source close to the defense.

The "frameup" charges center on the famous "Rail 16" of the kidnap ladder which state witnesses testified came from the attic floor of Hauptmann's Bronx home.

The defense supposedly is ready to prove that this piece of the ladder was built in by police to provide the final clinching touch in the state's case against the German carpenter. According to information in the hands of Hauptmann's lawyers, this alleged framing of evidence drew the secret, but bitter protest of the Department of Justice's Bureau of Investigation.

Even more important than the asserted "frameup" disclosures, however, is new evidence calculated to pin the "crime of the century" on the ghost of Isidore Fisch, it was said.

This evidence, gathered over a period of many months by defense investigators and closely guarded, traces some of the ransom money directly to the Jewish furrier, who died in Germany in 1933, it was reported. It also purports to show that Fisch's handwriting corresponded to that on the ransom notes even more closely than Hauptmann's.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—(INS)—Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann refused to take a special lie detector test in connection with the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case. Dr. James M. Hepron, managing director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Association and a member of the Federal Crime Commission, had revealed here today.

In an examination in Chicago last March, during a tour to raise defense funds, Mrs. Hauptmann tore the machine from her arm when questions about the crime were proposed. Dr. Hepron disclosed.

Dr. Hepron said he was told the "inside story" of the test by Dr. Leonard Seeler, head of the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern University, where Mrs. Hauptmann underwent a preliminary test with the lie detector.

The test was made, Dr. Hepron said, after Mrs. Hauptmann purportedly asserted the detector, if used on her husband, would be certain to free him.

"After she had taken a few of the regular card tests and had been caught in deceptions, Dr. Keeler told her he was going to ask her a few questions about the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby."

"Mrs. Hauptmann jumped to her feet, tore the machine away in no uncertain manner and declared she would not answer any further questions or undergo any tests."

PRESIDENTIAL DUTY

"A patriot President of the United States is the guardian, the protector, the friend of every citizen in them . . . But there is especially one great idea which Washington presents, and which governed him, and which should govern every man in high office who means to resemble Washington: that is, the duty of preserving the Government itself, of suffering—so far as depends on him—no one branch to interfere with another, and no power to be assumed not belonging to each and none abandoned which pertains to each."

—DANIEL WEBSTER in a speech at Albany in May, 1851.

CHALFONT ROVER CREW VISITED BY OFFICIALS

Scout Leaders Hold Conference
In Renovated Rover
Rest

GO OVER THE PLANS

Dr. DeAlton Partridge, director of research of the Boys Scouts of America, was guest of the Chalfont Rover Crew, the 18-year and older young man group of this community. Accompanying Dr. Partridge were: Scout Executive Robert S. Henderson, Reading; Alfred S. Bendell, Jr., Hagerstown, Md.; and William F. Livermore, Bucks County Council; and Assistant Executives H. L. Maze, Washington, D. C.; and Paul Stolz, Reading.

Rover Crew Leader Charles Poole, and Mate Eugene Boehret received the visitors. The informal conference was conducted in the newly renovated Rover Rest, Rovers Gilbert W. Carlin, William M. Carlin, Fred Hellberg, Ronald Wilson, and Howard Boehret were present.

Rover Mate Boehret outlined the past service achievements of the Crew, the weekly meeting set-up, and social objectives. Crew Leader Poole spoke of the Squire Investiture, and Rover initiation. Mr. Poole also discussed the Chalfont plan of a five-fold life of duty to God, country, community, home, and Scouting. Scout Executive William F. Livermore analyzed the recent Rover initiation ceremonies at Boehret's woods.

Dr. Partridge spoke of many experiences that open real adventure for young men in any community. It is possible to be happy in any size town if one will properly follow a moral, physical, and mental code were the thoughts of the research director. Ingenuity can make the most commonplace things very unusual. A contract was drawn to show the different approach that was necessary in Rovering when appealing to the interest of the English young man, than the American. The interest, and future outlook are so different that an appealing program must always be developed with an understanding of what comprises the interests of a particular group in a certain community.

Refreshments were served, and the conference adjourned with the singing of "Taps."

LEAP BEFORE YOU LOOK

(Saturday Evening Post, December 7, 1935)

It is only in the past month or so that even the more-informed sections of the public have begun to realize the staggering financial burden which the Social Security Act of August 14, 1935, has placed upon the country. It is said that only a handful of men in Congress understood this complex, far-reaching and stupendous undertaking. The words "social security" were enough in themselves.

But only three days later A. J. Altmeyer, assistant Secretary of Labor, went before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee to ask for a deficiency appropriation to organize the work of the Social Security Board set up under this legislation, and more especially for the old-age-benefits division. The chairman of the committee challenged this request in view of the fact that no benefits will be paid until 1942. But Mr. Altmeyer replied:

"This is the most colossal undertaking the Government has ever embarked upon. It will involve the expenditure of four or five billion dollars" (a year) "when it gets into full operation, and we must be absolutely certain that our actuarial estimates are sound and that our system of reports is correct. Otherwise it would be fatal. How will we keep track of these 25,000,000 people who will some day qualify? We will have to know what their contributions were and what their employment records are. They will transfer from one employer to another and from one state to another. We will need very elaborate records."

Indeed the records will be elaborate. For the old-age records alone it is estimated that 30,000 new Government employees will be required. Proper execution of the plan means that at least one record be kept by the Government of every individual in the annuity class, his numerous employments, his varying wages, the amount of taxes payable and actually paid thereon, and the amount of benefits. It was a colossal task to keep track of the 4,800,000 in our armed forces in the World War, but that was nothing to the Social Security job with its 25,000,000.

For business executives, lawyers, accountants, and the like, the act is especially important because it imposes new forms of taxes upon business operations and because the Federal Government steps into relationships between employer and employee heretofore considered beyond its powers. The taxes begin at a low rate in 1937, but increase by successive stages for thirteen years, when the total upon employers will be 6 per cent and upon employees 3 per cent.

But the tax upon employers is not upon income or profits, and thus upon ability to pay, but rather upon pay rolls, which have very little relation to ability to pay. Therefore, the tax will work out with the greatest possible inequity as among different employers in the same industry, different industries and different sections. Six per cent of pay roll does not sound like a great deal, but it may prove a very much higher percentage to increase the proportion of total taxes to income by an enormous figure. Either the profits of enterprise are going to be drastically reduced or the consumers are going to pay far more than they do at present.

But this is by no means all. When the program is fully under way, large additional sums must be obtained from other sources. This means that the direct taxes levied upon employ-

STATE SEEKS ANSWER TO STYLE OF PENN'S MANOR

Wants to Know Why Manor
House Was Built
"T" Shape

BREW HOUSE AN "H"

HARRISBURG, Dec. 11.—Why did William Penn have his manor house built in the form of the letter T and his brew house in the form of the letter H? If they were built purposely in these forms, is there any significance in the fact that they were placed on the same line forming the adjacent letters HT?

If there is an answer to this oddity, Donald A. Cadzow, archaeologist for the State Historical Commission, would like to know about it.

For the past three years Cadzow has been conducting archaeological studies through excavations at the site of Pennsbury Manor, along the Delaware river twenty-five miles above Philadelphia, in Bucks county. His purpose was to locate definitely and determine the nature of the construction of all buildings erected there by Penn more than 250 years ago. He uncovered original foundations of the manor and brew houses and was struck with the unusual formation. He is at a loss for a solution, and while there is a possibility that formation of the two letters may have been accidental, if there is an answer it might prove useful in eventual rebuilding of the manor or on the site acquired several years ago through gift to the State.

EXCELLENT LOT OF X'MAS TREES RECEIVED HERE

Cut and Growing Evergreens
Make Their Appearance,
As Do Cemetery Wreaths

A FINE SELECTION

Christmas trees have made their appearance in Bristol. The first shipment came Monday and was pronounced by those who know their Christmas trees, as "an excellent lot."

One dealer in the evergreens, which will be much sought from now until the 25th of December, received one size of cut trees in the advance lot yesterday. In addition he has stocked his place of business with a fine array of growing Christmas trees in attractive containers. After this type of trees serves for the Yuletide holidays indoors, or lighted upon the lawn, it can be planted to bring attractiveness to the surroundings for years to come.

Some of the dealers have a fine array of trees in all sizes, and report that business is fairly brisk, considering the earliness of the season, there remaining two weeks until the main holiday of the year.

Another dealer states that a fine variety of trees has been received, and that wreaths for cemetery use have arrived. Consignments of wreaths for use in the home, as well as loose holly, mistletoe, etc. are yet awaited.

Prices are reported approximately the same as in previous years.

With the increased interest in outdoor lighting effects, more and more trees are in demand for use outside the home. These coupled with those for use inside have greatly increased sales in the past few years it is reported.

TONSILS REMOVED

Acquits Junk Dealer But He Must Pay Costs

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 11.—Joseph J. Davis, 400 Perkiomen avenue, Lansdale, a junk dealer, charged with receiving stolen goods, who was tried before Judge Calvin S. Boyer without a jury on Monday, was directed to pay the costs of prosecution after the Court had rendered a verdict of not guilty.

"You are in a rather dangerous occupation. You have a good reputation, which the Court took into consideration. You have been charged with crime and came near conviction. You didn't do all you should have done. You should have put the young men under a stiff cross-examination to determine whether they came by their merchandise honestly. In fact, you should have had them sign a statement so they could not come back on you for buying stolen goods and found out where they obtained the copper wire."

"There is no question about receiving stolen goods on the defendant's part but did he receive them knowingly. It narrows down to what knowledge the defendant had when he bought the goods," continued the Court before he handed down the verdict.

"Frankly, it would be no trouble to find that Davis had reason to be suspicious. You might have guessed it was stolen wire, but the evidence must be so strong that the defendant did not know or was satisfied the wire was stolen goods before the Court can hand down a conviction."

DECLARED DRUNK BUT HAD ONLY TWO DRINKS

Adam P. Krauss, Sellersville, Found Guilty After
Trial at Court

FINED $200 AND COSTS

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 11.—Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, Adam P. Krauss, 33, of Sellersville, went on trial before Judge Calvin S. Boyer on Monday afternoon.

The first witness to take the stand for the Commonwealth was Jesse Gross, of Rich Hill, who lives along the Bethlehem Pike, near the scene of the accident. He described the gait of the defendant, following an accident with another car, November 3, as staggering.

State Highway Patrolman T. P. Cahalan, who investigated the accident and brought the defendant to Doylestown, where he was examined at the office of a local physician, testified Krauss walked with a staggering gait and that he detected alcohol on his breath. "In my opinion he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor and was not fit to drive a car. The defendant told me he had two drinks before 6 o'clock. It was almost 7 when I saw him."

Examined by Dr. Claude L. Taylor, the physician testified Krauss was under the influence of liquor and should not have been operating an automobile.

Krauss, who is employed as a salesman and installs and services oil burners, testified that he had two drinks of liquor between 5 and 6 o'clock in a Quakertown fire house following a football game. "I was driving south on the highway and must have gotten a little too far over on the other fellow's side of the road and struck another car. I did not feel the drinks."

Russell Heavener, who is employed as a garageman and member of a towing crew, testified that when he arrived at the scene of the accident to procure the defendant's car he did not notice that he was under the influence of liquor.

The other car, which figured in the collision, was driven by Henry Rehfus, of Allentown, it was testified.

Character witnesses included Charles R. Witmer, secretary of the Sellersville Borough Council and formerly chief Burgess; Jacob A. Kooker, a former Sellersville merchant and present Chief Burgess; and James Rickert, son of the Register-of-Willis-elect Mahlon Rickert, of Sellersville, for whom the defendant was employed for six years in the furnace business, all of whom testified he bore a good reputation.

They denied that Krauss had taken to drinking because of domestic troubles. He stated he was a divorced man.

Deliberating less than ten minutes, a jury late Monday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty. Krauss was sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and the costs of prosecution amounting to $43.

To Defer Oil Embargo

London, Dec. 11.—Premier Mussolini scored another victory over sanctionists today as Britain and France agreed to cajole the League of Nations Committee of 18 into deferring the oil embargo. Confident that Mussolini would agree to talk peace on the basis of the modified Hoare-Laval proposals of Paris inspired this decision, but revolt in the British House of Commons, revolt in Geneva and revolt in Addis Ababa made an armistice in the war zone still remote.

Il Duce's victory lay in the withdrawal by Britain and France of their ultimatum. The Italian dictator may take his time studying the plan and meanwhile his army may push further into Ethiopia. Britain has agreed to permit the League to study peace proposals.

The peace plan submitted to Premier Mussolini and Emperor Haile Selassie was not expected to draw reply from them before the meeting of the League's committee of 18 tomorrow.

British official circles pointed out that the peace basis efforts of Britain and France were made under the League, and that soundings will be taken from time to time. If the soundings prove inescapable either to Italy or Ethiopia in any way, it would not prejudice League action in any way.

Raps High Liquor Prices

Johnstown, Dec. 11.—The State Liquor Control Board can keep in the fight against bootlegging by slashing its "exorbitant prices in half," in the opinion of President Judge J. McCann of Cambria County. Judge McCann said the high prices charged by the State liquor stores was responsible for the influx of illicit whiskey into the county.

NEW CALENDARS

Statisticians probably could prove that the calendars born to blush unseen would, if laid end to end, provide Mother Earth with a paper belt with plenty of room for expansion, but that doesn't alter the fact that new calendars are now as welcome as the new year, of which they are the harbingers, will be.

Calendars take as many shapes and forms and purposes as the late crop of industrial codes, yet all have their uses. The more ornate are destined for domestic walls, where their leaves accumulate grocery orders and provide scratch paper. The big calendar with plenty of white space for appointments and other notes goes down to the office or store. A portion of the surplus must be assigned to the children to be cut up into play money, and the rest put away for calendar-relief and then forgotten until housecleaning time.

This approach of a new year with its new crop of calendars contributes its bit toward business and unemployment relief. Between the uncut timber from which the paper is made to the finished calendar there are several large industries employing thousands of men and women. And the mailing of calendars helps Uncle Sam reduce the postal deficit.

So do not reckon the surplus calendars as so much wasted material and labor and money, but as so much utilized material, labor and money.

SEX ANTAGONISMS

For weeks after every wedding the marriage of two popular young people is a topic of conversation among those who know them.

When the subject comes up for discussion in the homes of other married people the wife will say: "She is a sweet girl, I hope he will be good to her." And the husband will reply (mentally): "The boy is a decent chap. It will be a pity if she leads him a dog's life."

The woman for the woman, the man for the man! It is human nature. Sex antagonism is more firmly fixed than any other prejudice that troubles the race.

If, after the passage of years, the young people should quarrel and separate the women will blame the husband and the men will take it for granted that the "poor fellow" must have been mistreated beyond endurance. And even though a husband or wife wrongs the other, those of like sex will discover ample provocation for the act.

Paraphrasing that misguided patriot, Decatur, but without sacrilegious intent: "Our sex! May she always be in the right, but our sex, right or wrong."

The ideal girl of Princeton's freshman class is a combination of Harlow, Collier and Ginger Rogers. Come, come, fellows—what's her name?

What ever becomes of an official photographer who hordes a dictator into the desired pose and thoughtlessly remarks, "Look pleasant, please"?

A professor at Oxford is found to bear a remarkable resemblance to George Arliss. It is more than could be said of the Iron Duke.

Home Heating Hints

by JOHN BARCLAY

ONE way to cut the cost of heating your home is to avoid "Ashpit Waste". By that I mean the amount of coal shaken through the grate before it has been completely burned. Here are a few precautions which will help you to cut down this waste:

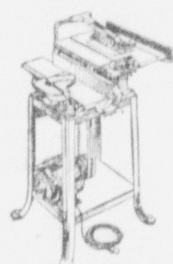

1. Burn coal of the proper size. Every heater is designed to burn a particular size. Your dealer can help you decide this.
2. Shake the grates gently—and only when necessary to make room for fresh fuel.
3. Keep the ashpit clean and clear of ashes. This is most important... because the ashpit serves as a chamber from which air is supplied to the fire. Without an ample supply of air, complete combustion of the coal is impossible.
4. Use a high quality, Pennsylvania hard coal.

THREE BRISTOL YOUTHS TO FIGHT IN PHILA.

Three Bristol youths will be in action in the amateur boxing show to be held in the Mason Hall, Seventh and Morris streets, Philadelphia, Tuesday night, December 17. The purpose of the show is to test the right of the State Boxing Commission to prevent the amateurs from using their own referees instead of professional referees.

The localities on the card are: Donato Sciarra who will fight Johnny Little, Mason; Tony Puccio who will battle with Ralph Nassone, Mason; and Harry Davis who meets Melvin Green, of the Arena.

If the show is held without interference from the state boxing commission, St. Ann's will hold a show on Monday night, December 23.

Harold James, who is under observation at the Naval Hospital, Philadelphia, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Hetherington, Buckley street, Irvin Hetherington, Williamson Trade School, Media, week-ended with his parents.

HUNGARIAN IDOL AND KOVERLY REMATCHED

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 11—A rematch of the sensational bout last Wednesday between Sandor Szabo, vaunted Hungarian idol, and George "Crybaby" Koverly, ace Arena villain, is on tap for the wrestling faithful tonight at the Trenton Arena.

Tonight's duel will be one fall to a finish, no time limit, instead of the usual two falls out of three. There is bitter enemy existing between the men and they determined upon the one fall to a finish to settle their argument.

Koverly feels that he was robbed last week and that he is Szabo's superior on any canvas. Falls were divided even and in the third and deciding fall, Koverly was easily getting the best of Szabo when a series of dishing tackles hurled both men out into the audience. With both men outside the ropes the referee started counting. Szabo climbed back, with Koverly following him, when Szabo reached the canvas, he planted a harsh boot in Koverly's face and prevented him from regaining the canvas in time, with the result that the referee counted him out. Koverly created one of the most disorderly scenes ever witnessed at the Stockton Street Castle of Crash in disputing the referee's verdict. He was finally cooled down and then demanded a return match.

Chief Chewacki, ranked as the roughest grappler in the game, will make his first Arena appearance against the popular Al Mercier.

Vic Christie, the most pleasing performer on the canvas, returns against rowdy John Swenski, and Irish Jack Donovan and Rusty Westcott, popular Hawaiian, complete this all-action card. The first bout will start at 8.30.

POSTPONE BOUTS BOOKED FOR CROYDON ARENA

CROYDON, Dec. 11—Officials of the Croydon Fire Company announced today that the amateur boxing bouts scheduled to take place tonight in the Arena have been postponed indefinitely. When asked for a reason for the sudden action the spokesman for the group said: "Some opposition had been raised about the show and rather than jeopardize the chances of the Rescue Squad with the Amateur Athletic Union, for a renewal of their boxing permit, the firemen decided to call off their show."

It is understood that the controversy between the A. A. U. and the State Boxing Commission is about to be settled satisfactorily for everyone, with a renewal of boxing both at the Mutual Aid Hall and Croydon Arena in the very near future.

Plans were discussed for raising of Bristol's quota of the Francis Willard Centenary Fund. Twelve subscriptions to the "Union Signal" and one to the "Young Crusaders" were reported.

Most Durable Athletes

By BURNLEY

With Iron Man Paulino about to expose his granite crockery to the dynamite-laden gloves of Jolting Joe Louis, the time seems opportune for a little story on the iron men of other fields of sport.

Baseball's most durable player is, of course, the indomitable Lou Gehrig, Iron Horse of the Yankees, who holds all records for consecutive games played in the big leagues.

Baseball is a hazardous enough pastime, as the annual list of injured players shows, but Lou laughs at injuries, and nothing seems to keep him out of a game.

The National League also has a player who is pulling an iron man stunt—Gus Suhr of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Oddly enough, Suhr and Gehrig are both first sackers—which may prove that playing the initial sack is safer than performing at any other post on the diamond. At least neither Suhr nor Gehrig are ever incapacitated by injuries.

One of the most gruelling and dangerous of all sports, ice hockey boasts a player with as enviable an iron-man record as Gehrig can boast. Murray "Mudhook" Murdoch has played in every contest the Rangers have had since the team was first organized in 1926.

More than 400 punishing ice struggles have gone by the boards in that time, and Murdoch has miraculously escaped any damaging injuries. The Ranger star qualifies as a real iron man.

Black urged greater use of health-giving fruit juices and milk, instead of drinks containing poison of alcohol. "We have tried to balance our budget with beer, and failed. Let us try to do it with milk and dairy products; with milk bottles instead of beer bottles."

Donations for the needy were received, and additional donations may be left at 601 Radcliffe street for distribution.
